Such equities and equity related securities may be listed on various stock exchanges in Japan, the United States, London or Singapore.

MANAGER'S COMMENT##

On Market

Japan's preliminary GDP estimate for October-December 2020 showed a second consecutive quarter of major growth, exceeding market consensus with exports and personal consumption contributing the most. The outlook for the current quarter might be weaker due to the reissuance of the state of emergency in January. However, the slowing rate of new coronavirus infections and the vaccination program rolling out might set a stage for economic recovery in coming months. Scandal surrounding PM Suga's son aroused public anger and as Japan remained committed to hold the Tokyo Olympics despite the pandemic, popularity of Suga dropped to new low. Stability of the current administration has posed a new risk after sustained calmness in the Abe era.

Japan equities moved higher in February, marking its highest level in decades. The local vaccination program, stronger-than-expected preliminary GDP figure and heightened expectation for the early rollout of additional stimulus in the US all buoyed investment sentiment. The market fell back in the latter part of the month after a spike in US Treasury yields triggered a retreat in global markets. Energy related stocks performed the best while Health Care & Pharmaceuticals dropped in contrast.

On Portfolio

The Sub-Fund slightly underperformed the reference index in February. Successful stock selection in Information Technology offset some of the negatives. The sharp run-up in Japan equities might have gone ahead of fundamentals, but the expected normalization of both the local and foreign economies remain positive to equity market. Thus the Sub-Fund would adopt a more neutral stance to reduce the near term risks.
